DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed January 10, 2007 has been entered and fully considered.
2. Claims 1, 5-10, 14 and 15 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 5-10, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by VAN ZOEREN (US 5,506,086).

a. The process taught by VAN ZOEREN is a process for making a flexographic printing plate from a photosensitive printing element wherein the photosensitive printing element comprises a support, an infrared-transparent photopolymerizable layer comprising an initiator having sensitivity to non-infrared actinic radiation, at least one layer of infrared sensitive material comprising an infrared radiation absorbing agent and at least one self-ablative binder and a material capture sheet (claim 1; col. 5, lines 16-40; col. 6, lines 15-65). Examples of the self-ablative binder include cellulosic materials. The infrared ablatable layer and material capture sheet are imagewise ablated with infrared laser radiation to form a mask which can be done using various types of lasers, preferably diode lasers emitting in the range of 780 to 980 nm. The material capture sheet is removed and the photosensitive element is overall exposed to actinic radiation through the mask. Subsequently the element is developed (claim 1; col. 14, lines 13-35). In order for the infrared sensitive layer to be opaque to ultraviolet or visible radiation, the layer includes a radiation-opaque material which prevents the transmission of actinic light (col. 5, lines 40-64). The radiation-opaque material absorbs actinic light and therefore meets the present limitations for the ultraviolet absorber. The flexographic printing plate can comprise one or more barrier layers (col. 8, line 40 - col. 10, line 5) which meet the present limitations for the cap layer.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed January 10, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive with respect to the rejection under 35 USC 102(b) over VAN ZOEREN (US 5,506,086).

Applicant argued nothing is disclosed in VAN ZOEREN regarding the point of deactivation of the ultraviolet absorbability of the mask layer by way of infrared radiation. The claims of record contain functional language. As pointed out in the rejection, the material of VAN ZOEREN meets the present limitations for the presently claimed relief printing plate. Therefore the relief printing plate of VAN ZOEREN is also capable of functioning in the same manner. Applicant is reminded of MPEP 2112, 2112.01, 2112.02 and In re Marosi, 710 F.2d 798, 802, 218 USPQ 289, 292.

Art Unit: 1752

6. In light of the claim amendments, the rejection under 35 USC 102(b) over BARZYNSKI et al. (US 4,555,471) is withdrawn.

Conclusion

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
